Amy Seldin is the Vice President at Madison Highland, where she oversees programming, design, style, and marketing initiatives for the live/work lofts platform. Before joining Madison Highland, Amy was a principal owner at Highland Square Holdings, LLC, where she played a key role in the design and development of the live/work loft product strategy.

Previously, she worked as a staff architect at a leading architecture and design collaborative in Atlanta and led design and marketing initiatives for a diverse range of clients across various industries.

Amy holds a Master of Architecture degree from Georgia Tech and a Bachelor of Arts in English and Economics from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. In her spare time, she enjoys running, floral design, and is a devoted mother to three beautiful girls.
